According to an online article from the Patriot News©, "State Sen. Scott Wagner, was in St. Louis over the weekend, where he threw a shout-out to ex-Trump White House consigliere Steve Bannon and said the conservative grassroots gives him "courage." The 2018 GOP gubernatorial hopeful was spotted at this weekend's sold-out "Put America First" rally, where he sat next to the former White House adviser in the crowd at the St. Louis Marriott hotel."

In an email from Jeff Sheridan, (info@wolfforpa.com), Jeff said: "Yes, the same Steve Bannon who co-founded Breitbart News and who helped craft much of the Trump administration's most xenophobic policies.

One of President Trump's biggest fans happens to also be a Republican candidate for governor here in Pennsylvania, and this weekend he took his disturbing fandom of the "alt-right" to a whole new level by sitting next to and praising Steve Bannon in St. Louis. Yes, the same Steve Bannon who co-founded Breitbart News and who helped craft much of the Trump administration's most xenophobic policies.

The Republican who praised Bannon is the same candidate who said he "didn't want to get involved in a national debate" after the events of Charlottesville, where white supremacists tried to intimidate and terrorize the people of Virginia with torches and violence. There's no way we can let this person near the governor's mansion.

This is bigger than political parties. This is about what it means to be an American. They need to answer to the people they serve and represent -- not sit with someone with ties to white nationalist groups.

Pennsylvania was built on the values of freedom and inclusion. We need a governor who will always protect the diverse views, cultures, identities, religions, and shared life experiences that have contributed to the creation of this melting pot we call home."
